

WHAT YOU CAN DO NEXT

Supporting the New Forest Act initiative

The New Forest Act is a proposed framework for new forestry legislation in British Columbia. Major legislative change rarely happens on its own. Public awareness, local leadership, and communication with decision-makers help move ideas from conversation to political consideration.

1. Learn the Framework

- Read the Executive Summary
- Review the Proposal and Background
- Learn how the Protect–Restore–Harvest (P.R.H.) framework works
- Understand why legislative change—not policy tweaks alone—is being proposed

2. Take Action

Contact Your MLA

Ask your MLA to review the New Forest Act framework.

Suggested message:

"I am asking you to review the New Forest Act framework as a possible replacement for BC's current forestry legislation. I believe BC needs structural forestry reform that protects communities, ecosystems, and long-term economic stability."

OR use our letter template: <https://boundaryforest.org/new-forest-act-letter/>

You may also wish to contact:

- Minister of Forests
- Minister of Water, Land and Resource Stewardship
- Premier of British Columbia
- Local government representatives

Share the Conversation

- Share the proposal and Executive Summary
- Discuss the framework with friends, family, and colleagues
- Share materials online or through community networks
- Write letters to local media or elected officials

Bring the Conversation to Your Community

Community groups and organizations may request:

- presentations
- virtual information sessions
- briefings
- Q&A sessions

If your community, organization, or group would like a presentation or discussion about the New Forest Act, contact us.

3. Stay Connected
